

Comment by the Women Major Group

In general, the document is gender blind and lacks analysis of the feminization of pollution, and how it impacts differently on poor and indigenous peoples.

It also needs to make clear that pollution is a man-made outcome, therefore it can be managed to stop pollution.

Although it mentions the different kind of pollution (air, soil/water, etc) surprisingly it does not include food pollution caused by agri-chemicals, hormones, preservatives, plastic packages, etc)