Kenneth,

Greetings from the United States. By way of introduction my name is Mark Pettibone and I represent Novinda Holdings, an advanced air quality technologies company based in Littleton, Colorado.

Novinda supplies coal fired power plants with Amended Silicates for mercury control in the United States. Amended Silicates is a non-carbon, non-halogenated alternative to Powdered Activated Carbon. Because Amended Silicates doesn't require or use halogens to oxidize mercury, it can effectively capture mercury without the consequence of promoting corrosion or impacting wastewater or impacting fly ash destined to be landfilled. Our vision, what we strive to become, is a leading global advanced material company generating innovative engineered products and solutions to improve the environment and benefit mankind. Given that objective, because Amended Silicates require a fraction of the capital required to produce Powdered Activated Carbon, the economics of capturing mercury in coal fired applications globally is enhanced.

I was first drawn to the UNEP Global Partnership website after receiving information about the Annual Meeting of the Coal Combustion Partnership held in conjunction with MEC 12 in Kruger, South Africa earlier this year. We support the Partnership, share its commitment to achieving its goal and hereby request that Novinda Holdings be allowed to join the Partnership. Please find attached the Partnership Registration Form.

If you have questions or need additional information please feel free to contact me anytime.

Sincerely,

Mark Pettibone
