Dear Brothers and Sisters;

It’s been almost 6 weeks since my last message on the two successful global meetings of Laudato Si 2nd International Conference and the Kofi Annan Faith Briefing. While I have been quiet over this period, I have been working, along with colleagues, on several issues that I thought of sharing with you.

Inger Andersen, UNEP Executive Director’s Statement on the Amazon Rainforest Fires

With more than 41,000 fires in the Amazon rainforests in that past 8 months only, millions of people have been directly impacted and dozens of thousands of plant, animal and fish species have been affected. UNEP stands ready to work with Member States in responding to this present crisis as stated in the statement made by Inger Andersen, Executive Director of UNEP. Ms. Andersen reiterated UNEP’s commitment in providing the science, tools and assessments to guide evidence-based policy, convening Member States to address pressing environmental challenges, and advocating on behalf of the Amazon and other forests across the world.

Our colleagues at the Interfaith Rainforest Initiative, a UNEP managed project, at the margins of Religions for Peace Summit, have launched a short movie on the Initiative calling all people around the world to protect rainforests in their #FaithsForForests campaign.

Faith for Water

At the World Water Week, being held this week in Stockholm, several side events and meetings will be held on Faith for Water on 29 August. The Water and Faith Network Meeting will follow directly after the Water and Faith public Showcase. The same evening will witness an important meeting on the newly established PaRD Environment, Water and Climate Action (EWCA) working group. The working group’s focus are the four goals concerned with protecting the biosphere: SDGs 6, 13, 14, and 15. The working-group is well underway to transform itself into a full PaRD work-stream, which will be officially introduced by PaRD. Faith for Earth will be represented in all of these events be Joakim Harlin and the UNEP delegation and I will participate by a video conference. Furthermore, UNEP will be co-convening several events and will be showing a one-hour long movie on SDG implementation and monitoring. For the full programme of the Week, go to https://www.worldwaterweek.org/programme.

Dr. Azza Karam, First Woman Secretary General of Religions for Peace

It is with mixed feelings we learnt about the appointment of Dr. Azza Karam the first woman secretary general. Azza has been serving as the chair of the UN Task Force on Religion and Development for several years. We will dearly miss Azza as a very active, dedicated and visionary chair, but the faith community will be winning Azza to lead one of the most prominent multi-religions coalitions Religions for Peace. Heartfelt congratulations to Azza.

High-profile Roundtable “Inter-confessional Dialogue and SDGs”, 8 July 2019, Moscow, Russia

Implementing an MOU with the World Congress of Mountain Jews (WCMJ) signed last May, a high-profile roundtable titled “Inter-confessional Dialogue and Sustainable Development Goals” was held at the UN House in Moscow on Monday, 8 July 2019. The roundtable discussion was organized by the WCMJ, an NGO in consultative status with ECOSOC, in partnership with UNEP. The event was attended by prominent representatives of various religious confessions, renowned political figures, members of the local artistic, scientific and business communities. It is worth mentioning in conclusion that the roundtable discussion seems to have been a real success. Its bottom line is that the commandments, true values and traditions of monotheistic religions urge their followers, in the spirit of brotherly love, to join efforts for peace and harmony between people and to strengthen human health, development potential, quality education, natural environment, economy and public institutions, - all but true ‘unifiers’ of people of different faiths on the firm foundation of the need to achieve the SDGs.
