INTRODUCTION

1. The XXIX Inter-Agency Advisory Committee (IAAC) was held in Athens from 9 to 12 January 1996. All MED POL Cooperating Agencies attended the Meeting (see Annex I for the list of participants).

Agenda Item 1: Opening of the Meeting

2. Mr L. Chabason, MAP Coordinator, opened the Meeting and welcomed the participants. He briefly recalled the process of finalization of the Phase III of MED POL and the links of new programme with the adoption of MAP II and the amendments to the protocols, and in particular the LBS. Although he assured that MED POL would remain one of the main and more comprehensive components of MAP, he stressed that on the long-term it would be difficult to obtain more funds for its implementation. As a result, he mentioned that outside funds could be sought from two main sources: METAP III (for hot spots, prevention and control of pollution and capacity building for pollution control) and E.U. through the programme for Euromediterranean cooperation. He concluded that a proper coordination for obtaining outside funds was necessary.

Agenda Item 2: Adoption of the Agenda

3. The Agenda was adopted by the participants as proposed on the understanding that the discussion on the various agenda items could be changed as necessary (see Annex II).

Agenda item 3: Review of the 1995-1996 activities

4. During the discussion on this agenda item, all the elements related to the implementation of the MED POL programme during 1995-1996 were reviewed.

5. Mr Civili briefly recalled the status of implementation of the National Monitoring Programmes. With the exception of France, Italy, Monaco and Spain who do not submit Monitoring Programmes, Malta and Libya did not submit a programme and Algeria will finalize it in 1996; all the other countries had finalized Monitoring Programmes (see Annex III). A discussion was held on some specific national programmes and on specific problems such as the national coordination of MED POL in some countries. It was decided that, once the programmes are signed, a copy of the Agreement should be sent directly to all the participating institutions of the country to ensure that proper information is given on their specific task within the programme.

6. In connection with the signature of National Monitoring Agreements, Mr Civili informed the participants that starting from 1996 the presently used Agreement format could no more be considered by the UNEP Headquarters as a valid contract. As a result, for each programme, a project document would have to be prepared which will follow the UN rules.

7. The FAO representative informed the Committee that after the decision by the Contracting Parties (Antalya, 1993) to introduce biomonitoring in parallel to chemical monitoring, an effort was made to train as many people as possible in the application of the four recommended techniques. As there is now a sufficient number of laboratories able to undertake such work, a pilot monitoring programme is taking place during 1996 to test the techniques. Twelve laboratories from 8 countries are now participating in the programme hoping that this number will increase with MED POL support in the purchase of the necessary equipment and the training of personnel.

8. During the discussion on Quality Assurance, it was stressed that a bigger effort should be made to make use of the results of the Quality Assurance Programme and Intercalibration. It was decided that each Agency should examine the monitoring reports more in detail and advise on doubtful data as appropriate. It was also considered opportune to start inserting in the MED POL Data Bank detailed information on data quality assurance. In addition, in each future programme, the insertion of a paragraph stating the obligation to participate in Data Quality Assurance and to reserve funds from the MED POL contribution to this effect should be considered.

9. To ensure the required quality of analyses the Meeting stressed the need to continue providing the participating laboratories with certified reference material and standards including those for the MED POL airborne pollution monitoring programme (major ions and heavy metals in rain water and on Whatman 41 filters). It was also agreed that 2-3 specialists involved in analysis of trace metals in rain water and air would be trained at the IAEA Laboratory at the end of 1996.

10. In view of the limited funds available in the future for Data Quality Assurance and the need for acquiring reference material for non-chemical parameters, it was recognized as indispensable to look for outside funds. However, all the participants agreed that all the IAAC members had to be constantly informed of all contacts with outside donors made by the Unit or individual Agencies in order to harmonize with already established programmes and avoid duplication of work.

11. A discussion was held on the suggestion made by the WHO representative to consider the idea of an accreditation procedure for MED POL participating institutes. Although the initiative was considered interesting, the meeting agreed that it was of very difficult implementation and very delicate from a policy point of view. It was however agreed that the participants should start preparing for the time being possible criteria for accreditation and discuss the matter further.

12. Mr Aksel briefly reviewed the progress of implementation of the MED POL data processing activities and reported on the results of the project on enhancement of data processing financed by Italy in 1994-1995.

13. Mr Civili informed the participants of the possibility to obtain in 1996 additional funds from Italy for a new project and that such project would be focused on the implementation of monitoring programmes in selected countries.

14. Mr Aksel reported that, with the finalization of specific reporting formats for radionuclides in sea water and micro-organisms in sand, all MED POL parameters were covered.

15. It was considered useful, considering the lack of uniformity in the reports submitted by countries on the implementation of the monitoring programmes, to prepare guidelines/instructions for the preparation of reports to be distributed together with the Monitoring Agreements. Each Agency was requested to submit examples of such reports used in other programmes.

16. A discussion was held on the implementation of the research component of MED POL. It was stressed that, as in past, the two preferential subjects chosen for 1997 (eutrophication and biological effects) should be given 50 per cent of the budget while the other 50 per cent should be left for all other subjects. A list of all research projects was distributed and the information on the implementation of individual projects was updated by the participants (see Annex IV). Also, 1996 research proposals were distributed. Concern was expressed on the very limited funds available for research.

17. The IOC representative proposed that in MED POL - Phase III, the research component should be renamed Research and Development, taking into account experience from other international and regional organizations and programmes. This component could support selected projects dealing with concerted actions aiming at sustainable development goals; cooperation between institutions from northern and southern Mediterranean countries should be encouraged. MEDU and cooperating UN Agencies will assist national institutions in the formulation of such projects and wherever possible solicit projects.

18. Although further discussion was necessary, the participants considered this proposal interesting since this new formulation of the research component may help attract external funds from donors.

19. The IAEA representative distributed the report "Current status of UNEP/IOC/IAEA Reference Methods and Technical Bulletins for Marine Pollution Studies" (Annex V). She informed the meeting that during 1994/95 period, 13 methods were revised, nine new methods were issued and one Technical Bulletin was issued. She in particular underlined WHO's input through MAP which provided revisions of twelve microbiological methods and five new methods in the field of sanitary quality of coastal recreational and shellfish-growing waters.

20. The IAEA representative stressed that the production of Reference Methods series was a very comprehensive activity carried out under the responsibility of UNEP, IOC and IAEA (under the tripartite Memorandum of Understanding, signed in 1992) and other specialized UN Agencies, when appropriate. The IAEA was responsible for final editing and testing of Reference Methods Series.

21. The IOC representative referred to the continuing work of the GIPME (Global Investigation of Pollution of the Marine Environment) Groups of Experts for preparation of Reference Methods.

22. A list of training and fellowships provided to Mediterranean scientists in 1995 was distributed to all participants for information (see Annex VI).

23. The meeting examined the LBS implementation workplan which had been prepared for the last IAAC Meeting and decided to update the information reported and use the document as an historic record of the implementation of the LBS Protocol activities to be presented at the Meeting on the preparation of Regional Action Plan for the LBS to be held at the end of 1996 (see Annex VII).

24. Mr Civili briefly informed the participants on the latest developments concerning the work on climatic changes which is now carried out in the framework of specific CAMPs.

25. Mr Civili reported the progress of implementation of the CAMP projects in Algeria, Morocco, Israel, Malta and Lebanon.

26. The IOC representative said that there is a considerable potential for contributions to CAMP programme by components of the Global Ocean Observing System (GOOS) as well as to other coastal area management related IOC programmes.

27. The Meeting reviewed a list of the meetings held in 1995 and of those foreseen in 1996 (see Annex VIII).

28. A list of MAP Technical Reports Series Volumes issued was distributed and the representatives of UNEP, FAO, IOC, WMO and WHO informed the meeting of new volumes which will be issued in 1996.

Agenda item 4: Development of the operational phase of the implementation of MED POL-Phase III

29. Mr Jeftic introduced the document "MED POL-Phase III - Programme for the Assessment and Control of Pollution in the Mediterranean Region (1996-2005) (UNEP(OCA)/MED WG.104/4)" and briefly recalled the steps made for its preparation including the Izmir Meeting in 1994, the presentation of the programme to the Joint Committee Meeting in 1995, the comments received from Contracting Parties and the Informal Consultation of outside experts held in 1995 (report issued as UNEP(OCA)/MED WG.102/2.

30. A discussion followed the presentation and some suggestions for small changes were made on trend monitoring and the Advisory Group.

31. It was agreed that the organization of the Meeting for the preparation of the operational document which will have to be prepared as a follow-up to the expected adoption of the programme will have to be made in close collaboration with the MED POL Cooperating Agencies and it should start as soon as feasible if the meeting is to be held at the end of 1996.

32. It was suggested that the next IAAC Meeting should be held in conjunction with the MED POL Coordinators Meeting in March 1996 to discuss the subjects dealt with in paragraphs 23 and 31.

Agenda item 5: Preparation of Meeting of MED POL National Coordinators

33. The Meeting discussed the subjects to be dealt with at the MED POL National Coordinators Meeting and agreed on an Agenda, List of Documents (see Annex IX) and elements for Progress Report and Recommendations.

Agenda item 6: Tentative budget for 1997

34. Mr Jettic distributed a draft programme and budget for 1997 which could be presented to the MED POL National Coordinators Meeting. This draft was based on zero growth for activities.

35. The Meeting agreed that the budget for the MED POL was not only insufficient for the implementation of the activities envisaged in the Programme but also did not ensure the continuation of important on-going activities. It was felt that this should be brought to the attention of the Meeting of the National Coordinators.

36. The Meeting agreed that any financial contribution from the UN Cooperating Agencies, related to some specific activities should be communicated to the Unit and could be shown in the budget.

37. The UN Agency representatives regretted the fact that they had not been able to contribute to the preparation of the draft 1997 programme and budget. However, in view of the agreed reduction in the amounts allocated for the two meetings proposed in the draft programme in chapter 3.1. "Assessment of pollution-related problems", they suggested the following changes in order to ensure the continuation of certain important activities:

- a) The amount earmarked for the First Meeting of the Advisory Group of Experts for MED POL to be reduced from US Dollars 60,000 to US Dollars 20,000.
- b) The balance of US Dollars 40,000 together with the US Dollars 50,000 proposed for one ad hoc Meeting of Experts on specific subject important for the assessment of pollution, to be utilized as follows:
- US Dollars 15,000 for a planning workshop on quasi-synoptic surveys in the Mediterranean. IOC will provide another US Dollars 15,000 for this workshop;
 - US Dollars 25,000 for a review meeting on the results on the pilot programme for biological effects monitoring;
 - US Dollars 25,000 for a meeting of experts on airborne pollution;
 - US Dollars 25,000 to be added to the proposed budget in chapter 3.3. "Supporting Measures" under a new budget line of "Purchase of standards and reference materials".

38. During the IAAC Meeting which will take place towards the end of 1996, there will be a discussion on the detailed implementation of the activities as well as the distribution of funds.

Agenda item 7: Other business

39. It was agreed that an effort should be made to hold IAAC Meetings in conjunction with other meetings in order to reduce travel costs.

Agenda item 8: Adoption of the report

40. The draft report of the Meeting was unanimously adopted.

Agenda item 10: Closure of the meeting

41. Mr Civili thanked the participants for their constructive work and closed the Meeting on 12 January 1996.

ANNEX V

CURRENT STATUS OF REFERENCE METHODS

1. Sanitary quality of coastal recreational and shellfish-growing waters

With the exception of RM "AC", these methods are generated by WHO, specifically through WHO's input to the Mediterranean Action Plan. WHO is responsible for selecting suitable techniques, testing the methods and assessing their usefulness in field situations. Only the final editing is conducted at MESL. The WHO has undertaken a major revision of several methods and a number of new methods were produced. They were submitted for printing during November 1995 (see notes below). All the 1995 methods were also translated to French and they will be printed early in 1996. The suitability of some of the remaining methods for situations outside the context of the Mediterranean should be reviewed.

This RM was prepared by WHO and will be submitted for GEMSI review before printing.

"AC" UNEP/WHO/IAEA: Determination of selected neurotoxins in marine organisms.

This method is regarded as an important future component of the RM series given the need to screen shellfish for toxins and the apparent increase in frequency in toxic blooms. Following the 1991 GEMSI meeting, Dave Jamieson suggested that some of his colleagues at NRC, Canada might be willing to draft this text. There was an exchange of letters which appeared to get the project off the ground but no real action followed. Dr. Jamieson explained at the 1992 GESREM meeting that the original group of scientists who had offered to undertake this work were no longer working together. He agreed to pursue the matter further. He also presented a brief review of methods for the analysis of shellfish toxins prepared by Dr. J.C. Marr of Fenwick Laboratories Ltd. which would appear to cover at least part of the requirements for this method. GEMSI guidance should be sought on how best to proceed.

RMs 9 and 10 will be joined into a single method. MESL has sent the present texts to R. Dawson at Solomons's. Apparently R. Mason will send the manuscript to MESL by the end of September 1995. It should be ready for printing in 1995.

This method is now somewhat out of date. A single volume entitled "Determination of trace elements in marine organisms by atomic absorption spectrophotometry" is now in preparation. A consultant Mr. Bewers was hired to prepare a manuscript (together with Dr. J. Uthe and J. Topping) which should be ready for GEMSI review by the end of 1995.

This method is completely out of date and misleading. It will be withdrawn in October 1993, and it proposed to be replaced with method "AM" (see details below).

- No. 40 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of DDTs and PCBs in selected marine organisms by capillary column gas chromatography. (E) 1988

This popular method should now be reappraised by the GEMSI organic sub-group with the intention of publishing Revision 1. Dr. A. Knap of BBS and the GIPME Group of experts (Meeting in June 1995, Paris) suggested that Dr. J. de Boer should be contacted to revise the method. It is suggested that the revised version should also include guidelines for the determination of organohalogen compounds other than PCBs and DDTs.

- No. 59 UNEP/IAEA/IOC/FAO: Determination of organotins in environmental samples. (E) in print 1995

New Methods

- No. 71 UNEP/IAEA/IOC/FAO: Sample work-up for the analysis of chlorinated hydrocarbons in the marine environment. in preparation

This method was originally assigned to a consultant who did not honour his contract. This was subsequently canceled (the funds cannot be recovered when this happens and are returned to UNEP). A meeting was held in Monaco 28-30 October in order to formulate this method (at least to assign tasks). The meeting was sponsored by the Mediterranean Action Plan and the former Chairman of GEMSI, Jan Duinker attended. The meeting provided a preliminary basis from which a complete and comprehensive RM will be prepared. The method is currently being prepared by Drs. J.-P. Villeneuve and J.W. Readman at MESL and will be sent for GEMSI review in November 1995.

- No. 72 UNEP/IOC/IAEA/FAO: Determination of petroleum hydrocarbons in selected marine organisms in preparation

This manual was originally to have been prepared by Kathy Burns based heavily upon RM 20. A contract was issued to T. Wade for compiling this document by the end of September 1995.

- "V" UNEP/IAEA/IOC/FAO: Guidelines for the determination of organohalogen contaminants (other than DDTs or PCBs) in selected marine organisms.

This method has been placed on "hold" owing to insufficient funds being available. An initial review of the subject was conducted at MESL for the Mediterranean Action Plan and published as MAP Technical Reports Series No. 70 (1992). The methodological issue should be discussed by GEMSI and a strategy agreed.

3. Chemical contaminants in sea water

- No. 50 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Standard chemical methods for marine environmental monitoring. (E) 1990

This manual includes techniques for dissolved oxygen, pH, nutrients. It should be reevaluated in 1995/96. Please note that the 1990 version replaces a provisional one printed in 1988 but with inferior typesetting. The new version was used to set the standard for future RMs.

- No. 16 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of DDTs, PCBs, PCCs and other chlorinated hydrocarbons in sea water by gas chromatography. Rev.(1) in prep. withdrawn (1993)

Techniques for sample work-up for the determination of "dissolved" chlorinated hydrocarbons will be included in method 56. A detailed account of the analysis of low levels of PCBs (ocean baseline levels) is given in IOC Manuals and Guides No. 27.

- No. 18 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of total dissolved cadmium in sea water by differential pulse anodic stripping voltammetry. Rev.(1) in prep. withdrawn (1993)

The earlier version of this method was withdrawn at the suggestion of GEMSI. GEMSI advice is now sought as to whether the method should be dropped altogether.

- No. 56 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of dissolved/dispersed hydrocarbons in marine waters. in preparation

This is currently being prepared at MESL(Readman) by revising and updating the IOC Manuals and Guides No. 13 (1984) incorporating the analytical protocols (for the uv/f method) from RM. 20. Target date for submission to GEMSI review is November 1995.

New methods

- "AS" UNEP/IAEA/IOC: Determination of selected organophosphorus contaminants in estuarine and coastal water. in preparation

These methods were tested at MESL as part of a MEDPOL pilot study. This RM is currently under preparation at MESL (Readman and Tolosa). The target date for submission of the manuscript for GEMSI review is December 1995.

- "AT" UNEP/IAEA/IOC: Measurement of suspended matter in sea water.

This new method was proposed at Bermuda, 1993 meeting. A strategy for its production will be designed by Dr. T. Knapp of BBS.

4. Chemical contaminants in marine sediments and suspended matter

- No. 20 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Monitoring of petroleum hydrocarbons in sediments. (E) 1992

This is one of the most extensive manuals to be edited as part of the RM series. A major revision should not be necessary until 1997. However, in the meantime, a careful watch should be kept for improvements in scanning techniques, particularly improvements in the w/f methodology.

- No. 26 UNEP/IAEA: Determination of total mercury in marine sediments and suspended solids by cold vapour atomic absorption spectrophotometry. draft(E) 1985
Rev. 1 in preparation

Rev. 1 to be edited at MESL (see notes under RM 8). Target for review is December 1995.

- No. 27 UNEP/IAEA: Determination of total cadmium in marine sediments by flameless atomic absorption spectrophotometry. (E) 1985

All single element methods for the determination of trace elements in marine sediment are replaced by the new RM No. 63 (see further notes under RM 63).

- No. 31 UNEP/IAEA: Determination of total chromium in marine sediments by flameless atomic absorption spectrophotometry. (E) 1985

See note under RM 27.

See note under RM 27.

- "Z" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of aluminium in sediments. canceled

See note under RM 27.

- No. 63 Manual for the geochemical analysis of marine sediments and suspended particulate matter (E) in print 1995

For the purpose of UNEP/IOC training courses and monitoring exercises, the excellent "Manual for the geochemical analysis of marine sediments and suspended particulate matter" of Loring and Rantala (1992) is being employed. Reprints were kindly supplied by the authors in a sufficiently large supply to cover a year or so of demand. Permission was obtained from the authors to issue the paper in standard RMs format. The paper was also discussed at the LAEA/IOC/UNEP "Workshop on the Determination of contaminants in sediments", 20-24 Sept. 1994. The group of experts decided that the paper is extremely useful (Dr. Loring, also participated at the meeting) and they recommended the paper to be included in the RMs series. The manuscript was edited at MESL and reviewed by GEMSI. At present it is in print.

New methods

- No. 58 Guidelines for the use of sediments for marine pollution monitoring programmes. in preparation

A first version of this text was prepared by Ian Davies. This was reviewed in-house (prior to submission to GEMSI) and extensive comments were returned to the author. The corrected version was received before the LAEA/IOC/UNEP "Workshop on the Determination of contaminants in sediments", 20-24 Sept. 1994. The Group of experts reviewed the manuscript and recommended that it should be restructured so as to improve the flow of the arguments and to avoid redundancies. The paper should also include more extensive reviews of the existing literature and basic case studies, in order to demonstrate complexity in monitoring planning and data interpretation. The manuscript was returned to the author to take into account the above conclusions of the meeting. However despite constant reminders the consultant has failed to modify his draft manuscript. It is therefore suggested that the final version is prepared by Dr. Loring, who kindly contributed to the production of RM 63.

- "R" Guidelines on the sampling and preparation of sediments for marine pollution monitoring.

Nothing has been done about the production of this method. It was supposed to show the correct practical procedures for taking samples (e.g. core samples) and preparing them for analysis. It would also show how to obtain ancillary measures (grain size, Eh, pH, etc.). Some aspects of the above are included within the RM 63. The matter is referred to GEMSI who are invited to advise on the relevance and strategy for this manual.

"AE" UNEP/FAO/IOC/IAEA: Determination of organophosphorus compounds in marine sediments. in preparation

This method is currently being prepared at MESL (Readman and Tolosa) on the basis of recent publications and the MEDPOL pilot study.

5. Chemical contaminants in estuarine waters and suspended matter

"C" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Guidelines for collecting and interpreting data on estuaries. withdrawn/pending

The manuscript for this method, prepared by Morris, was considered unacceptable by GEMSI (Moscow meeting). It was however, agreed that the inorganic sub-group would examine the text with a view to cutting it down to the bare essentials and producing a less ambitious "strategy" document. GEMSI advice is sought.

No. 41 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Guidelines for the determination of riverine inputs of inorganic contaminants to estuaries. (E) 1987

In light of its relevance to the LBS this RM should urgently be up-dated. The guidelines should also include instructions for determination of other contaminants. GEMSI advice is sought on how to proceed.

No. 19 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of total mercury in estuarine waters and suspended sediment by cold vapour atomic absorption spectrophotometry. draft(E) 1985

This method should be withdrawn and combined with RM 26 to be completely revised and updated by M. Horvat (MESL). GEMSI agreement sought.

New methods

No. 52 UNEP/WHO/IOC/IAEA: Determination of phosphorus in suspended matter and sediments.

This is a relatively simple method which has been put aside due to the heavy workload at MESL and the fact that these analyses are not routinely carried out at MESL. Perhaps a small contract could be given to a suitable laboratory to complete this task. It was agreed by GEMSI (Bermuda, 1993) that R. Dawson would investigate a suitable scientist for completing this task and prepare appropriate terms of reference. Mr. Dawson has already been contacted concerning this matter. One should also consider joining RMs 52 and 53.

No. 53 UNEP/WHO/IAEA: Determination of nitrogen in suspended matter and sediments.

Comments as for No. 52

"G" UNEP/WHO/IOC/IAEA: Determination of BOD₅ and COD in estuarine waters.

Comments as for No. 52 with the addition that the use of these measurements, particularly COD, is very questionable, particularly where strong salinity gradients are found. Further advice from GEMSI is requested.

"T" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of total cadmium in estuarine waters and suspended matter.

The relevance of this method is questioned. GEMSI should advise. No action should be taken on this method until the next GEMSI session.

6. Chemical contaminants floating or on beaches

No. 15 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Monitoring of tar on marine beaches.

draft(E) 1985

No changes proposed at this stage.

No. 62 UNEP/NOAA/IOC/IAEA: Marine debris survey manual.

(E) final editing

This is a new manual produced by NOAA and offered for reprinting as a contribution to the RM series. It was reviewed by the usual RM procedure and should make an excellent contribution to the series. Target date for printing is 1995.

7. Atmospheric chemical contaminants

- No. 24 UNEP/WMO/IAEA: Sampling of aerosols and wet precipitation for analysis of chemical pollutants. draft(E) 1985

Some critical comments have now been gathered for this method and WMO should be invited to reevaluate it with a view to completing a first definitive version.

- No. 42 UNEP/IAEA/WMO: Guidelines for the determination of selected trace metals in aerosols and in wet precipitation. draft(E) 1988

In the framework of the MED POL programme, an excellent manual is being produced "Sampling and analysis of aerosols and precipitation for major ions and trace elements". At the WMO/UNEP "Expert meeting on air born pollution of the Mediterranean Sea", in December 1994 it was agreed that this manuscript could be used for preparation of Revision 1 of this RM. GEMSI views are requested on this issue.

New methods

- "P" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Determination of halogenated hydrocarbons in aerosols and in wet precipitation.

This is a method which has been on the catalogue since 1984. A contract was originally issued for its production but no manuscript was forthcoming. It is the view of the editor that this method would not have a wide enough readership to warrant further expenditure on a new contract at the present time. GEMSI views are requested on this issue.

- "Q" UNEP/WMO/IOC/IAEA: Sampling of dry deposition.

When first contemplated, this method proved so controversial that the would-be authors approached all refused to tackle the job. Is this method still necessary? GEMSI views are requested.

8. Effects on marine organisms and ecosystems

- No. 25 SPC/UNEP: Coral reef monitoring handbook. (E) 1984
(F) 1990

No revision of this method is contemplated at this stage.

- No. 43 UNEP/FAO/IAEA: Test of acute lethal toxicity of pollutants to marine fish and invertebrates. (E) 1989
draft(S) 1988

The "acute toxicity tests" series was investigated at the initiative of FAO and a series of methods testing workshops were held in 1988. GEEP has avoided all involvement in acute toxicity testing in the past and there is thus no peer review procedure established for this series. Nevertheless, in the author's view, toxicity testing is an ineludible fact, particularly considering the linkage with current legislation (however undesirable this may be). Furthermore, there is a move towards effluent toxicity testing in order to enhance environmental security when setting effluent standards. At its 1993 session GEEP (Dr. M. Deplege) agreed to review these methodologies and suggest how to proceed on this issue in the future.

- No. 44 UNEP/FAO/IAEA: Estimation of the toxicity of pollutants to marine phytoplanktonic and zooplanktonic organisms. (E) 1989
draft(S) 1988

See comments following method 43.

- No. 45 UNEP/FAO/IAEA: Comparative toxicity test of water-soluble fractions of oils and oil dispersants to marine organisms. (E) 1989
draft(S) 1988

See comments following method 43.

- No. 51 UNEP: Sampling and identification of common Mediterranean Scyphomedusae and evaluation of their occurrence. draft(E) 1988

This is one of the outcomes of the MEDPOL jellyfish project. If jellyfish are considered a "nuisance" or a possible indicator of eutrophication, then this method may have some relevance. Certainly a new edition is not planned at this stage.

- No. 60 UNEP/IOC/FAO/IMO/IAEA: Hepatic mixed function oxidase induction in fish as an environmental monitoring technique (E) 1992

The first (and to date only) GEEP-produced method. Tested at 1992 MEDPOL (FAO/UNEP) workshop.

- No. 61 UNEP/AIMS: Monitoring coral reefs for global change. (E) 1993

This is a new method which sets the standard for future manuals of this kind. It was produced as a result of cooperation with AIMS in much the same way as Method 62 with NOAA. This cooperation with national institutions (following the usual review process) should be further developed and exploited in the future.

- No. 64 UNEP/IOC/FAO/IMO/IAEA: Statistical analysis and interpretation of marine community data (E) in print 1995

GEEP has been producing these methods since 1990. The manuscript was prepared by Dr. K. R. Clarke and R. M. Warwick from Plymouth Marine Laboratory, UK and will be published as IOC Manuals and Guides 22. It was sent for printing in May 1995.

New methods

"JC" UNEP/IOC/FAO/IMO/IAEA: Scope for growth determinations in marine bivalve molluscs. in preparation

Two manuscripts were prepared by Dr. J. Widdows and Dr. P. Salkeld (Plymouth Marine Laboratory) (1) Role of scope for growth in environmental toxicology and pollution monitoring and (2) Practical procedures for the measurement of scope for growth. Before the final editing at MESL, both manuscripts will be submitted for GEMSI/GEEP review. Target date is Dec. 1995.

"AG" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Guidelines for evaluating the effects of thermal discharges on the marine environment.

This method was scheduled for production in 1994. As sufficient funds were not available, no action was taken on this RM. As to the 1993 GEMSI session (GEEP - Dr. M. Deplege) should suggest possible authors. Dr. Deplege has already been contacted to proceed.

"AH" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Guidelines for detecting and monitoring eutrophication in the marine environment.

This method was initially planned to be assigned to a group of Swedish consultants headed by Ragner Elmgren (who also participated in the respective GESAMP W.G.). However, Dr. Elmgren informed MESL in March 1994 that he will not be able to undertake this responsibility. GEMSI/GEEP opinion is requested on the contents and scope of the method and who should be the most suitable person to contact. The idea of producing this document as a Technical Bulletin should be considered.

11. Miscellaneous methods

- No. 0 UNEP/IAEA: Guidelines for the use of (E) 1990.
 Reference Methods in marine pollution studies.

In light of the fact that a number of new reference methods will be published during 1995 a new revision is scheduled for the beginning of 1996 which will summarize the status of RMs to date.

- No. 46 UNEP/WHO/IAEA: Determination of methyl- draft(E) 1987
 mercury, total mercury and selenium in human hair. withdrawn (1993)

This RM was produced at the initiative of WHO. It is suggested to drop this RM from the series and include appropriate text in the next Revision of RM 13.

New methods

- No. 65 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Reagent and laboratory ware (E) in print 1995 clean-up procedures for low-level contaminant monitoring.

The manuscript for this method was produced by Manfred Ehrhardt and reviewed by GEMSI (M.Bewers and J. Uthe) and experts at MESL.

- "AD" UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Guidelines for monitoring the presence of used lubricating oils in the marine environment.

A first "attempt" at this method was made by Rolf Weber (IOUSP, Brazil). He was unable to identify easily applied unambiguous techniques. This is hardly surprising considering the complex nature of used lubricating oil, especially following weathering. GEMSI should review this situation with a view to shelving the proposed RM.

- "AK" UNEP/IOC/IMO/IAEA: Guidelines for monitoring marine dumpsites

The suggestion was made at GEMSI to elicit the support of IMO for this manual. Dr. Campbell was He suggested to await ~~approval~~ giving suggestions for preparation of this RM. amendments of the London Convention in 1996.

- "AL" UNEP/IOC/FAO/WHO/IAEA: Guidelines to assess in preparation the impact of point sources of pollution.

A working group on this subject was set up by WHO as part of their contribution to the Mediterranean Action Plan. WHO had offered to prepare a first draft of these guidelines on the basis of this WG's activities. A manuscript is at present in review. GEMSI/GEEP may wish to consider alternative strategies. This should be addressed as part of the GEMSI/GEEP's intersessional activities in 1995.

12. Technical Bulletins for Marine Pollution Studies

This new series was initiated in 1992 in order to provide a source of information to regional laboratories which will complement the documents strictly dedicated to methods and guidelines. The subject matter should cover the following topics: (1) literature reviews and surveys; (2) intercomparison reports where they are of significance to a wide readership; (3) reports of pilot monitoring exercises, again where the significance is sufficiently wide; and (4) technical workbooks, worked examples, etc. Potentially, this series could also provide an organ for diffusing selected background papers to GEMSI/GESREM/GEEP meetings, etc. Some of these documents have constituted valuable reviews which would otherwise be lost. The advice of the expert groups is sought regarding the future development of this series.

- TB 1 UNEP/NOAA/IAEA/IOC: Mussel Watch worldwide literature survey. (E) 1992

Permission to reprint this valuable survey was granted by NOAA. It is a mutually convenient arrangement as it improves the diffusion of NOAA's valuable efforts as well as supporting the international programmes of the cooperating agencies.

New volumes

- TB 2 UNEP/IOC/IAEA: Marine pollution studies quality assurance workbook for the use of standards and reference materials in the quantification of chlorinated pesticides (E) in print 1995

This document is envisaged as a GESREM product. It was compiled by T. Wade and A. Cantillo. . The chemical workbook was received at MESL in July 1995 and it has already been edited, and sent for printing.

- TB 3 UNEP/IMO/IOC/IAEA: A compendium of principles and advisory guidelines on marine environmental protection

This document was proposed by IMO (J. Campbell) and should prove to be a very useful source book of information for all engaged in marine environmental management. Tentative completion date is September 1995.

- TB 4 World-wide and regional trends in the quality of analytical data on chemical pollutants in marine sediments in preparation

To be compiled at MESL. .

- TB 5 UNEP/IOC/IMO/IAEA: Current status of biological effects techniques.

Title is still tentative. This document should be prepared by GEEP on the basis of the report of the Bellagio meeting. Contacts have already been established with Dr. Gray concerning the matter.
